POPE GUARDS' EXPENSES.

Rome, Oct. 8 .- The Pope is instituting a number of economies at the Vatican. He has abandoned the escort of honor during his walks, ordered the horses of the noble guard sold, and directed that the collection of birds in the gardens be no longer maintained. His predecessor possessed various kinds of pheasants and ostriches of many rare species. Pope Pius X thought it was too costly to support these luxuries and ordered them distributed to various institutions. Hu also thought the expense of the keep of the gardens was too heavy, and some parts which are now devoted to flowers will be turned into meadow lands. Time Job Printing at the Bulletia
